PREFACE

The Jefferson National Expansion Memorial was authorized by Congress as ". . . a permanent memorial to the men who made possible the territorial expansion of the United States, particularly President Thomas Jefferson and his aids, Livingston and Monroe, who negotiated the Louisiana Purchase, and the hardy hunters, trappers, frontiersmen, and pioneers and others who contributed to the territorial expansion and development of the United States of America." The park was established by Executive Order 7253, signed by Franklin D. Roosevelt on December 21, 1935.

The Jefferson National Expansion Memorial collects and preserves archival materials that document the exploration and settlement of the American West, and particularly the role of St. Louis as the Gateway to the West. These manuscripts and records are collected as an extension of the three dimensional holdings of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, further explaining and describing the artifact collections, and perhaps supplanting them when objects are lacking or unavailable. The human dimensions of the park's holdings are strengthened through the acquisition of personal correspondence, diaries, journals, sketchbooks, and photograph albums. These materials, along with records that document the administrative history of the park, comprise valuable and irreplaceable reference sources for historians and other scholars.

The Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Archives was formally organized in 1988 to insure the protection of these unique collections, and to make them available to the public. A small reference library is also available, containing nearly 4000 titles on westward expansion, native Americans, St. Louis history, and the National Park Service. The Library and Archives are available by appointment only. Researchers wishing to visit the Library and Archives are invited to call or write to make the necessary arrangements.

This collection was created as Donald F. Dosch, National Park Service Historian, was researching the history of the Old Courthouse. In 1969 he wrote a brief history of the building, which would later be enlarged and published as The Old Courthouse in 1979.

In the three chapters of the book Dosch examines first the history of the building itself, that is, the construction and architectural significance of the Old Courthouse. Secondly, he delves into the historical figures and events which are associated with the Old Courthouse. As Dosch stated in the prologue, the Courthouse "served as a public forum as well as a temple of justice. The gatherings held here not only dealt with matters of local importance, but also reflected many of the great movements and events in the nation's history." The third and final chapter is devoted to the actual business of the various courts.

In preparation for writing, Dosch took notes on many aspects of the Old Courthouse. These notes from primary and secondary sources make up the first series. Series 2 contains notes about historical buildings and sites in St. Louis. Series 3 and 4 contain the photographs and manuscripts which would eventually be published as The Old Courthouse.

Information obtained from this collection must be properly cited, whether used in publications or in other formats. A citation suggested for this collection is:

Researchers are advised that before records, photographs, or any other unpublished materials from this collection can be published or exhibited, permission from the National Park Service must be obtained in writing.

ARRANGEMENT

Series 1. Donald Dosch's Note Cards

This series contains the note cards created by Donald Dosch when he was researching the book The Old Courthouse. The last folder in the series contains information on the notes actually quoted in the text of the book. These notes all deal with aspects of the Old Courthouse and were taken mainly from court records and newspapers. The cards are arranged alphabetically by source and secondly by subject within the source. The cards themselves include the following information: the source is found in the upper left hand corner, the subject of the note is found in the upper right corner, and the note and page number are found in the body of the card.

Series 2. Historic Buildings and Sites

This series contains note cards created by Donald F. Dosch to record information about the historic buildings and sites of St. Louis. Each card has the name of the building, the date, the lot number, and any other information that Dosch wished to record. The cards are arranged in alphabetical order, with the exception of buildings associated with the Old Cathedral and located on the same lot, Lot 59. Notes on these buildings can be found with the notes on the Old Cathedral. For further information on historic buildings and sites, please see "The St. Louis Riverfront Historic Map and Commentary," Record Unit 106, Series: Real Estate Records, Sub-Series: Historic Sites and Buildings Binders.

Series 3. Old Courthouse Photographs

This series contains photographs, a few with notes, which were used in The Old Courthouse. This series includes interior and exterior views as well as photographs of significant events and people in the history of St. Louis and the Old Courthouse.

Series 4. First Draft of *The Old Courthouse

This series consists of the first draft of The Old Courthouse. The typed manuscript is in page number order. The Table of Contents in the first folder makes a good guide to the manuscript.

APPENDIX 1. FINDING AID INDEX

This is an index to the Archives' descriptive finding aid to the Donald F. Dosch Collection. It does not directly index the records in the collection, but rather the folder titles, annotations, and other components of the finding aid. Included in the index are subjects, names of individuals and organizations, and titles of publications and other issuances that appear in the finding aid.

An index entry followed by a (p), (m), or (d) indicates that the referenced folder contains photographs, maps, or drawings, respectively. In addition, a folder might also include other types of records, such as correspondence, diaries, reports, newsclippings, etc. Photographic materials include still photographs, negatives, transparencies, newspaper prints, etc. Drawings are primarily architectural or engineering renderings.
